Correspondence of the Louisville Democrat. Fruit Trees and Graje Vines.

MARGER COUNTY, KV., Nov 6, 1855. Mesers. Editors: It has been some time since I wrote to you, and the reason is, I had General Commission Agent your readers some advice on the subject. The tall season is the best time for setting out trees or vines, for two reasons: the ground will not bake around them if set in the fall, and the dirt will settle to the roots in winter, and the plant will be ready to grow in the spring as early as those in the nursery. All broken roots should be cut smooth with a knife before set. The the spring seldom grow much the same year. The time far pruning grape vines is also at hand. They should be pruned between this and Christmas. If the slips or cuttings are intended for use, they should be buried in a cell or some shelter, leaving the top bud above the dirt. It they are not managed in this way, and the winter should be very hard, there is dauger of losing them, by the buds being killed; for, if the buds are killed, they can never grow. In pruhing vines at this season, my rule is to leave twice as much bearing wood as I want for use next year, till I see how the winter uses thera. If the buds are badly killed, I let all grow; if not, I prune again in the spring. Now is a good time to prune old apple trees; all dead or de-caved branches can be seen by their having no There has been a goodly quantity of sirup made from the Chinese cane in this county. It Yours, in haste, W. J.

Messra. Editors: I have something rather strange to communicate to you. At a meeting of the Miscionary Baptists, lately held at Vanderburg, the clurch and community generally were thrown into considerable excitement and confusion in the tail of two members of the clurch by the name of Trice. These two Trices are brothers; they married sisters, and are living about a mile from each other; each accussing the other of private injury, and each one denying the accusation of the other. Finally, William Trice accused David of attempting to commit adultary with his wife. This charge was substantiated by William Trice's wite because of the commit adultary with his wife.
